

Finesse Your Way Into Threesomes, Foursomes, And Moresomes

BY JOE ZIGFIELD

Of all the sex fantasies a guy can dream up, it's the thought of being the "meat" in a delicious girl/girl "sandwich" that still gets the biggest rise from most of us. We've all tried to talk our girlfriends into a threesome. But what if she just won't go for it? Or what if you don't have a girlfriend? Don't let those become excuses for not "Living The Dream."

Guys, there's a whole world out there – and it's closer than you think – of hot bisexual babes who'd love nothing more than to make you the third leg in their lust triangle. (Or rectangle, pentagon, etc., if you really do your homework.) We gathered up the hottest bi-babes we could find, to give you the inside scoop on how to score in their world.

BEAT AROUND THE BUSHES

Ariel, 24, is an exotic dancer at Scores, the popular New York gentlemen's club beloved by Howard Stern and other celebs. She estimates that she's slept with 20 or 25 girls since her first time at 13. "I like it when I'm [out with a girl] and a guy plays hard to get – when he looks at you, but quickly looks away," Ariel says. "I love that sensual feeling knowing they're watching you."

If you make eye contact with bixixens like Ariel and her horny friends, make sure you don't show your hand (or more essential body parts) too soon. As Ariel's colleague Heidi, 22, puts it, "Try not to pose a threat. Don't get touchy-feely."

Adds Ariel: "We like it when guys beat around the bush." Hmm... Makes a lot of sense when you think about it. You have to beat around the bush before you can play in their bush.

Adult film legend Jill Kelly reinforces this point, stressing that the same common sense that applies to meeting one woman is the key to seducing two or more: “You shouldn’t come across as someone who’s just out for sex. If you’re honest and open and have a sense of humor, that will get you a lot farther a lot faster.” Jill, whose sharp business mind is a perfect complement to her yummy looks, warns that women have no patience for morons. “The best thing for guys is to be themselves, and if they’re a jerk, then they’re not going to get anywhere.”

As a veteran of just about any group-sex combination you could imagine (and probably many that you couldn’t), Jill knows her stuff. A few years ago she was in a torrid relationship with porn actress P.J. Sparxx. These two insatiable beauties spent many a wild night enticing additional bodies – both guys and gals – into their bed. And we’re not just talking other porn stars. Had you patronized some of the hipper Los Angeles nightclubs back when this pair was on the prowl, you might have been one of the lucky guys (what an understatement!) who ended up sharing their sheets. (Happily and monogamously married these days, Jill recalls it as her “freaky” period.)

“If you’re going to give a line, make the effort to come up with one worth giving,” says Jill’s protégé, Haven, a 5’ 7 stunner who went into the adult industry because she “wanted to fuck beautiful women.” And remember: “Above all, be respectful.”

But don’t confuse being respectful with being a wuss. Bijou, a dancer with the stripper-for-hire service, CenterfoldStrips.com, says: “A guy has to be very straightforward if he wants to meet two women. He can’t be all timid and shy. But he shouldn’t be too pushy or aggressive either. Just relax and have a good time, and offer us a drink.” Who wouldn’t buy a drink for this petite 21-year-old blonde, whose huge orbs could take out an eye. Oh, but what a way to go blind!

BEEN THERE DONE THAT

“When you see two chicks that seem to be sexual with each other, don’t scream out, ‘Yesssssss’, or ‘Eureka!’ like you’ve just struck gold,” says Devon, 26, also with CenterfoldStrips.com. “You have to act very blasé about it, like you’ve done it many times. It’s attractive to a woman to think that a guy is attractive to other women and has had a vast array of conquests.”

Devon had her first girl/girl experience back in those heady days when “Basic Instinct” launched Lipstick Lesbianism – or Barbie Doll Bisexuality, as I like to call it – into the mainstream. “One day out of the blue she grabbed me and started kissing me,” Devon recalls about a high school pal (and at the time, her brother’s girlfriend). “Then we just ‘went for it,’” as the innocent tongue-play quickly “escalated into full-on cunnilingus.” If only that magical day was caught on film.

“If you act too overzealous, it’s not happening,” says Pam, another CenterfoldStrips entertainer, who performs girl/girl shows with Devon. (You might have seen part-time actress Pam on The Sopranos as – you guessed it! – a Bada-Bing girl.) “Nobody wants some guy who’s running around like his hair’s on fire, yelling, ‘Yes. Yes. It’s happening!’”

A TARGET-RICH ENVIRONMENT

So where can you put your newfound knowledge to work? Obviously, bi-babes can be just about anywhere, anytime. Or anyone, for that matter. (Who knows what that leather-skirted brunette in your English class munches on after school?)

But if there’s one truth that our revered elders – mainly Howard Stern – have tried to drum into our beer-soaked skulls over the years (and which my research for this article bears out), it is this: The sex industry is crawling with bi-babes.

Now unless you live near Los Angeles’ “Silicone Valley,” you’ll have a hard time bumping into Jill Kelly or other adult stars. Instead, focus your efforts on the strippers in and around your town. And don’t kid yourself that you’re not rich or handsome enough to meet these girls. “Most of it is how you carry yourself,” says Devon. “I’ve met many a drop-dead-gorgeous dufuss.” If that doesn’t stiffen your spine, listen to what Tyler, a 21-year-old Scores dancer, has to say: “My ex-boyfriend looked like the guy from ‘Where’s Waldo?’” (Like her Scores colleague Ariel, Tyler estimates having slept with more than 20 babes.)

The key, though, is to find out where these girls go when they’re off duty. And for that, you’ll need to do some research at your local strip club. Of course they’re not going to talk to you for free. Like a cop hoping to “pump” an informant for details, be prepared to toss a few bucks their way on a lap dance or two. Then, as nonchalantly as possible, engage your new friends in small talk. And when the timing feels right, ever so gently ask them, “So where are the good places around here to dance/party?”

Once you’ve obtained this last piece of crucial information, it’s time to act. Happy Hunting! oui
